Lunch menu

Australian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (AEME) Corps came into being on 1 Dec 1942. On the 16th of August 1945, the war in the Pacific was declared over and the Royal Australian Defence Force started to demobilize its war machine. Soldiers from the Australian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers unit were assigned to wait for discharge on the sparsely inhabited sandy beaches of Mermaid Beach. To occupy their free time, soldiers became active in starting this local lifesaving club. The original clubhouse was built from scrounged material on the beachfront at Ocean Street, eventually moving to this very spot. Those founding members named their new club Mermaid Beach A.E.M.E. Surf Life Saving Club. A.E.M.E is now known as R.A.E.M.E and in 2017 celebrated their 75th Anniversary.
